

Material broadcast over the airwaves must remain free and uncensored, unless there is a clear and present danger of harm from those contents. Sexual and so-called "obscene" material is in the eye of the beholder, and the beholder has the opportunity of tuning in or tuning out. I am distressed that the FCC sees its role to be national censor. Fines and other strictures regarding what is rightly called "free speech" are truly chilling and opposed to the basis of our constitutional rights.
